Sarah Pearsall was born in Britain in 1907. She stayed there until she left school. Then, she travelled around France. She earned money by painting pictures and writing for a newspaper in Paris. She married an artist and went to paint with him in Spain. In the 1930s she left Spain and returned to London. She worked for her father’s company, making maps of the world. She thought there was a need for new street maps of London and started working on a book of maps. She collected a lot of information. She walked along every street in the capital and wrote down the name, the important buildings and even the house numbers. She called her book A to Z. The first A to Z was in the shops in 1936 and it was a big success. In fact, it sold very well for many years. Although it is still the most popular book of London street maps, nowadays people are using apps like Google Earth to get around the city.

- The article is about the frequent use of Google Earth.
- ; Sarah went to school in France.
- Sarah thought maps of London were old.
- She sent emails to all the buildings and shops in London to get information for her book.
- People still use A to Z a lot.
